

Contract Documents

AIA - Contract Documents

The AIA Contract Documents Program, the oldest and most comprehensive program of its kind in the world, develops standardized contract forms and administrative procedures for the building industry. AIA contract documents provide the basis for nationwide uniformity for contractual relationships in the design and construction process. They represent the state of the law regarding construction industry practices and new legal developments and assure fairness to all parties--owners, architects, engineers, builders, and contractors--and contribute to successful projects.

ALA - Contract Documents

Projects can also benefit from ALA contracts which offer the newest short form standardized contract's program developed locally in the Midwest for the building industry. Contracts provide short yet comprehensive contractor agreements for contractor relationships in the design and construction process. Their format simplifies the complicated design and construction industry practices and assures fairness to all parties-- owners, architects, engineers, builders and contractors --and also contributes to successful projects.
