Project Description:

The First National Bank of Cicero has been several different Banks since we renovated and restored the existing facility shown in the photos below. The original renovation and restoration brought back the classic interior that had once been present. The ornamental ceiling had been covered, the finishes neglected, and many of the marble panels showed damage and failures. The planning remained much the same but the transformation in appearance was significant. The ceiling was uncovered and detailed, faux finishes were created for marble panels that could not be replaced and matched, details were created for stair handrails and miscellaneous transitions, and an overall brighter and dramatic appearance was delivered. This project serves as an example of the value of existing structures. By investing time, energy and money into this facility our client revealed a facility of great value.
